

Ex-Montreal Grid Stars at Overseas Classic

Among the 30,000 Canadian and American service people who thrilled at the recent "Tea Bowl" rugby classic between teams representing the two countries at White City Stadium outside London, were these Montrealers who—only yesterday it seems—were holding the spotlight on local sport pages particularly because of their feats with Montreal "Big Four" teams.

Above, of course, is Gordie Noseworthy, who cheated history by stepping from West Hill high school ranks into Canada's toughest grid competition and instant stardom as a booter and plunger. He's now an R.C. A.F. pilot. The good looker with him? She's Jean Waiser of London—a Wren on leave.
