

He's Still Hoisting 'Em High

Gordie Noseworthy, West Hill rugby booter extraordinary who jumped from high school grid stardom to Big Four headlines with the Montreal senior team, used to imperil bird life around the Montreal-Ottawa-Toronto-Hamilton loop with his towering hoists. He's still hoisting them, but sleek planes have replaced pigskin. The pilot's wings are brand new and the Royal Canadian Air Force has also made him Pilot Officer.
